DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections

1. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

2. Claims 1, 5, 7-13, and 16-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by WEEKLY (US 3033303).

WEEKLY describes a method and apparatus for conveying an operator to harvest produce (see column 1:11-17). The operator is held by a body support element (150) that is horizontally movable forward and back (see column 3: 49-50), and the movement may be accomplished by sliding (see column 3:64-68). The support member can therefore be adjusted to suit an individual operators' body. Since the range of movement is consistent with the proportions of a human figure laying on the body support member (150), the range of motion can be assumed to be 1.5 – 2 m in height (or length, since the figure is prone when the apparatus is in use). The claimed “collection area” and “conveyor system” is being read on the shelves and storage space of WEEKLY (see Fig. 5 and column 3:26-44), the produce being subsequently removed from the collection area and the machine for packing. The movement of the body support and the operator thereon is being read as the optimization of the operator's position.

3. Claim 2, 4, 14, and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over WEEKLY.

WEEKLY describes a method and apparatus for conveying an operator to harvest produce, as described above.

WEEKLY does not disclose a plurality of body support elements. WEEKLY also does not disclose sensors to monitor the direction of movement of the harvester.

Regarding claim 2, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the invention of WEEKLY by adding body support elements to increase the number of operators and thus increase the throughput of the machine, since it has been held that mere duplication of the essential working parts of a device involves only routine skill in the art.

Regarding claim 4, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the invention of McCLUNEY by adding a motorized means for adjusting the position of the body support element in order to reduce the effort required by the users, since it has been held that broadly providing a mechanical or automatic means to replace manual activity which has accomplished the same result involves only routine skill in the art.

Regarding claim 14-15, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to add sensors to monitor the direction of movement of the harvester, as known from the admitted prior art, to the invention of McCLUNEY in order to provide extra safety for the user.

Examiner also notes that it has been held that broadly providing a mechanical or automatic means to replace manual activity which has accomplished the same result involves only routine skill in the art.

4. The following prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to Applicant's disclosure:

- FULTON discloses a boom on a vehicle which can be read as a linear runner with at least 1m of movement, which would be deemed capable of performing the function recited in the last paragraph of claim 1.
- BLACK discloses a body support that is movable horizontally to move a prone or supine human figure.
- REMPEL discloses a vehicle for harvesting produce with a telescoping boom which can be read as a linear runner with at least 1m of movement, which would be deemed capable of performing the function recited in the last paragraph of claim 1.
- NILSEN discloses a moving vehicle for harvesting produce using a conveyor for moving the produce through the vehicle.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed 8/31/2009 have been fully considered but are considered moot in view of the new grounds of rejection.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
